WOLSEY SOCKS FOR MEN

The fame of "Wolsey" hose needs very little remark. Yet even "Wolsey" wear suffered, like the rest of things, in quality during the war. The present stock of "Wolsey" is the best quality we've had for years. As soon as you touch it, you know instinctively that here is pure wool. It is unshrinkable and the colors are fast.

Prices are such that men are buying quantities for future wear. Brown, or green heather, lovat and black.

INTERMEDIATE TEAM PLAYS FINAL GAME

Outdoor and Indoor Leaders Clash To-Day.

DEMAND FOR ROOTERS

McGill Boys Know no Defeat This Season.

While at the present time the eyes of the whole University are centred upon the Senior hockey team, and the fight of Varsity with Queens is discussed, while haranguings are made concerning the intercollegiate championship, McGill realizes that among the Intermediate hockey team there are stars of no mean order who have shown an excellent knowledge of hockey whenever they have played this year.

The Intermediates secured the indoor championship when they defeated the M.A.A.A. by 3—2 last Saturday, and plays St. Gabriels this afternoon at three o'clock at the Victoria rink. St. Gabriels received the right to play this final game for outdoor championship by defeating Montreal West.

The match this afternoon should prove very interesting, as to the credit of the Red and White can be placed the fact that the McGill boys have gone throughout the whole year without suffering a defeat. This is a truly splendid record which reflects great credit both on the players and on the coach.

Should the McGill team pull off another victory, they will have the right to challenge for the Allan Cup which is emblematic of the Amateur Championship of Canada. The importance which is attached to the game this afternoon should prove a stimulus to every rooter. Remember boys, those who are playing represent you, give them your support by cheering them at 3 p.m. at the Victoria rink.

Y.M. AND Y.W. HOLD PARTY ON TUESDAY

Officials Anxious For Successful Turn Out.

R. V. C. PRESENT.

Tramp Will Start At 8.15 p.m. Good Evening Expected.

When it became known that it was impossible for another skating party to be held on the campus rink under the auspices of the Y.M. and Y.W., much criticism and dissatisfaction was felt among certain sections of the Undergraduate body. To counteract this disappointment, a snowshoe tramp around the Mountain was held a few weeks ago, when both sexes turned out and enjoyed a splendid evening. The weather was then ideal for snowshoeing, and since that time the question was repeatedly whispered, "What of another snowshoe tramp?" Apparently the question did not always remain a silent whisper, for so great has been the demand upon teh officials who so successfully planned the last outing, that on Tuesday, March 2nd, another tramp around the Mountain is to take place.

The snowshoe tramp which will be held on Tuesday next is going to surpass any social activity given by the "Y.M." and "Y.W." this year. Every possible preparation is now being made, and those in charge are anxious that every student connected with the University who is interested in such an exhilarating and healthful sport will be present on Tuesday night.

The busy time of the whole session is drawing near, and in a few days a ban will be put on all sociables that will take students from their studies; again, the good snowshoeing weather cannot last much longer. Then, boys, if you want to have a real good night of sport, healthful exercises with acrobatic stunts, join the party that will scale Mount Royal next week.

The party will leave Strathcona Hall at 8.15 p.m., and will change partners at various stages on the journey. About 10 p.m. the wanderers will return again, after which, the usual high class of refreshments will be served.

A large number of the fair sex from the R.V.C. will be present, and the partners will be chosen before leaving the hall. Come, for refreshments and partners will be in abundance!

INFORMAL DANCE ON FRIDAY NEXT

Tickets Will Go On Sale At 1 p.m. On Friday At the Union.

On Friday night, the fifth, the last of the Students' Council informal dances will be given in the Union. These affairs have proved extremely popular and have never failed to bring out as many men as the hall could accommodate. On account of the proximity of examinations, this one will terminate the social season. The committee are doing all in their power to make this dance the best yet. The hall will be decorated, and excellent music has been secured.

The tickets will go on sale between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. on Monday, at the Union. There is certain to be a rush when the sale opens, so punctuality is the only guarantee. The price per couple will be, as usual, two dollars per couple.

The patronesses for the evening will be Miss Huribatt, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Forbes.

CHEMISTS HEAR PROF. LLOYD

Interesting Lecture On His Recent Trip To the East Indies.

Before an intensely interested audience, Prof. Lloyd talked yesterday evening about his recent trip to the Etst Indies. He said that he could not talk about everything, but would confine himself mostly to plantation rubber.

Great as his expectations of the Orient were, they were more than realized — the wonderful variety of impressions of color, smell, sound, motion, flora and fauna are beyond the description of words. Especially worthy of notice is Singapore, the gateway between East and West—the distributing centre of the Malay Peninsula and the Eastern Archipeligo. Here one finds the highest expression of civilization — the city is well equipped with hotels, theatres, etc., whilst within easy range one can view Nature in her wildest forms. It is impossible to grasp the vastness of the islands in the East, even the Dutch do not know the stupendous opportunities awaiting them in such immense islands as Sumatra, Java and Borneo, and thousands of smaller islands.

Prof. Lloyd remained three weeks in Malay, thence he proceeded to Java for one week, where he visited the botanical gardens and the government estates where gutta percha is obtained. Here the trees are no longer tapped but are pruned and the leaves picked, as on a tea plantation, then ground between stone rolls and the gutta percha extracted. This is the finest quality, and brings twenty guilders per lb. ($8).

Next he visited Sumatra, where the U.S.A. Rubber Co. have an estate of 40,000 acres. The trees, of a species imported from Brazil, are 4½ to 5 years old, and one is transported through miles and miles of orchards of rubber trees, all almost exactly alike, until the monotony of it is past description. To briefly describe the procedure here:

The trees are "tapped" each day before sunrise, i.e.,oblique slices through the bark are made around one-fourth of the circumference, and the juice or latex flows into a cup placed at the bottom. The latex flows for about one hour; the little cups are then emptied into a larger container and the latex is removed to the coagulating shed, where it is poured into tanks, and coagulation takes place. The clot, which consists of rubber and proteins and sugars, is next rolled into sheets, dried and smoked, sorted according to lightness of color, trimmed with scissors, and, lastly, put into boxes and labelled.

Prof. Lloyd next showed some interesting slides of diseased rubber trees. Plantation rubber in the East Indies is only a very recent industry, and the planters thought the trees would be immune from disease, but apparently wherever there are large areas of trees of the same species disease soon appears. About the most obnoxious are brown bast, claret canker and black thread. These may be caused by the tapping.

Lastly, Prof. Lloyd showed two sarongs, i.e., Javanese garments worn by both men and women. The sarong is a beautifully dyed cylindrically-shaped garment, worn as a sort of skirt by both men and women.

In the discussion that followed, Mr. Whitby stated that serious results had occurred from the non-observance of root diseases.

After a very hearty vote of thanks, the meeting adjourned.

MANY SISTERS ENTERTAINED BY MEDICALS

Old Spirit Of Chivalry Still Alive.

NOTABLE GUESTS.

Nurses Served Overseas With Men in McGill Hospital.

One of the best dances held here for some time took place last night, when the Medical Undergraduate Society honored the Nursing Sisters who served overseas in the No. 3 General Hospital. For some time the undergraduates of the faculty have awaited an opportunity of showing in a public way their appreciation of the overseas sisters, so the proposal that a dance should be held met with unanimous support.

The assembly hall of the New Medical Building was tastily decorated for the occasion with flags and palms. Supper was served in the corridor on the second floor, the lights of which were festooned with flags.

It was not a large, but never a more enthusiastic dance, and a general survey of the dancers at once showed that all were enjoying it to the fullest extent.

The gowns were of every conceivable hue —white, scarlet, old rose and black. The music, which was furnished by the Berliner Orchestra, was beyond criticism. Everything, in fact, added to the success of the evening.

The patronesses of the evening were: Mrs. C. E. Moyse, Mrs. G. E. Armstrong, Mrs. F. G. Finlay, Dr. Maud Abbott and Miss Huribatt.

Nurses of No. 3 Canadian General Hospital invited: Misses C. Harrison, O. Fitzgibbon, R. McConnell, Martha Allan, A. M. Tate, M. Wright, J. Clendenning, K. McKay, B. Forgey, V. E. Sampson, M. L. MacDermot, M. E.

LOYOLA WON FROM JUNIOR HOCKEY TEAM

Excelled McGill Boys In All Departments Of Game.

SCORE: 7—1.

Victorias Defeated M.A.A.A. In Fast Game—Score 5-3.

The Junior Hockey team was defeated by the Loyola sextette to the score of 7 to 1, last night, at the Mount Royal Arena, thus losing their chance of winning the championship. They were hopelessly outclassed from the start to the finish. At no time during the game were they able to break awey and show a good style of combination, whereas Loyola played fast combination, and were speedy and clever stick-handlers. Moran, in goal, pulled off some good saves, and the score would have been much higher had it not been for his good work. Bernard was the most consistent player for Loyola, and Kelly and he scored three goals each.

The game opened with several fast end-to-end rushes. Plow evaded Loyola defence neatly and scored the first goal of the game, which was McGill's first and only count. Kelly rushed, but failed to score. Kelly scored from a fast combination play with McCullough. Kelly and Bernard rushed, but missed a good chance to score. In a few minutes McCullough secured the puck, stick-handled his way by the defence, and fooled Moran easily. McNider made a good rush, but failed to score. Bernard came back and scored for Loyola, and just before the close of the period, scored again.

In the second period the play at first was kept at the McGill end. Moran saved well. Loyola failed to score from an exciting scrimmage in front of McGill's nets. McGill forwards tried some combination, but failed to pierce the Loyola defence. McMahon and Benerd pulled off a pretty piece of combination, but failed to score. Benard received the puck and tricked Moran with a swift shot. Loyola attacked, but Moran cleared easily. Kelly and Benard fooled McGill's defence, and Kelly slammed the rubber into the nets for the sixth tally. Kelly tried a long shot from centre ice that slipped by Moran. McGill carried the puck to Loyola's end, but in the resulting

Educational Intolerance

Intolerance on the part of the faculties of some universities is beginning to stifle free thinking on the part of the younger generation, and to defeat the very purpose for which the whole educational system purports to have been founded. The cry has been raised that the universities are not producing the same number of outstanding men as in the past. Now this may partly be accounted for, by the fact that so often the utter disregard which the professor holds for the opinion of the student, and the pnealties which he inflicts on free and original speech are crushing out of liberal minded youth, those qualities which have made for progress in the ages past. The fact that the faculty is made up of a diversity of minds and opinions, some radical, some conservative, is the only thing that keeps originality in the student from being entirely killed. As conditions now stand he has an opportunity of being hyprocritical in one class, and sincere in another. If by an unfortunate combination of circumstances, he falls into classes where the views of the instructors differ from his own, he must either develope into a liar or gain the disfavor of the teacher, which may produce results unfavorable to the student.

Moving about in an atmosphere which he thinks gives to him the superiority of mind over his students, a certain type of college professor is becoming a narrow self-centred man, who treats with scorn, anyone who has not yet added a number of degrees to his name, which, to the man who has not been exposde to a college education, stands for a long period of cramming and grinding and a proportional loss of common sense. Such a man's views of life and the world in general start out invariably with a capital "I".

He considers himself an expert in interpreting the events of the day, whether his particular subject be entomology or Greek, but resents any criticism which may be directed against his own department.

PROFESSOR TAIT RECEIVES PRIZE

Award Consists Of Gold Medal and Sum of Money.

The Neill Prize, one of the highest distinctions of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, has been awarded to Dr. John Tait, D.Sc., F.R.S.E., recently appointed professor of physiology at McGil, for a series of papers on "Experiments and Observations on Crustacea" which were published in the Proceedings of the Society. The prize which consists of a gold medal and a sum of money is awarded for an original paper of unusual merit on a subject of natural history presented to and accepted by the society. Among others who have in the past been recipients of this honor are Sir Andrew Crombie, geologist; Sir William Turner, anatomist; Professor Herdman ,zoologist; and Dr. W. S. Bruce, Antarctic explorer.

Prof. Tait came to McGill this year from Edinburgh. He has made some wide changes in the course in Physiology and has proved very popular with the students. He was formerly Lecturer in Experimental Physiology at Edinburgh and has published a book entitled "Aids to Physiology' 'which has attained great popularity among students of the second and thord years in Medicine.

ELECTRIC CLUB ENJOYED TRIP

Visit To Northern Electric Plant Proved Very Instructive.

A very interesting and instructive trip was made Thursday afternoon by members of the Electric Club, who were the guests of the Northern Electric Company. Wires and cables for all purposes were seen in various stages of their manufacture at the Shearer Street plant. Starting from the ground floor, the party was conducted through each department up to the seventh storey where the offices are situated. The copper was seen as it arrived at the plant and the method of cleaning off oxide and drawing it to any required diameter was explained. The bare wires thus prepared were seen being insulated with paper, cotton, rubber, etc., according to the service they were for. The reason for each step in the treatment of the wire, such as annealing, and tinning for rubber insulations, was made clear by Mr. McKnight, the companys representative who so ably acted as guide and source of information about each process. Before leaving, each member was presented with a souvenir of the trip in the form of a handbook of wire and cable information.

VICTORIAS DEFEAT M.A.A.A.

Victorias won the championship of the City League last night by defeating M.A.A.A. by the score of 5 to 3. The teams were very evenly matched, and played brilliant hockey from first to last. Vics scored first, and the period ended with the score 2-1 in their favor. Russell penalized Allan, the M.A.A.A. goal-keeper, in the second period, but Vics failed to score during his absence. During the last period, M.A.A.A. fought hard to win, and save for the spectacular work of Law in goals, the outcome might have been different. Dawes ensured victory for his team by scoring the last count of the match.

The line-up was as follows

M.A.A.A.		Victorias

MEN'S RIGHTS.

Men's rights are a great deal of trouble to them. They assert them, and get them, and then they don't know what to do with them. A man's rights, half of them, are meant to give away . . . The beatitude of your rights is, they are your benevolences. You can yield them, give them away. And the law of social unity is this law of assertion of a man's individuality, and the use of that individuality as a benevolence for those that are round about him.—Henry Ward Beecher.

World's Student Christian Federation Issues Call.

SERVICE ON FEB. 29th.

Churches Giving Similar Call For Forward Movement Same Day.

Nowhere in the world to-day does there exist an enchanted City of Learning, where men dreamed out their lives in the dim pease of library and cloister, remote from the struggle an dthe noise of life outside the walls of the city. There is not a single university or college that can truly be described as an academic paradise, peopled by scholars who, having eaten of the lotus tree, live in happy forgetfulness of the world outside. It is true that not all students have abandoned the study of Plato in favor of a course in scientific agriculture or exchanged the mysteries of the mediaeval chronicler for the mysteries of the mining engineer. Nor have the spires and halls of the historic universities of Europe been replaced by more hygenic buildings of red brick. But everywhere, in the old universities as in the new, the chatter of the market place has invaded the drowsy stillness of the lecture room, and debates are focused on the problems of industrialism, of inter-race relationships, and of the foundations of international peace. Great numbers of men who are students to-day were soldiers yesterday, and they bring to the study of history and philosophy a first-hand experience of history in the making, and a philosophy of life constructed, not without pain, under the stress of battle.

A better understanding is greatly needed and it can only be based on real and thorough study of facts and on sympathy and open-mindedness. Preeminently thi sis work for the student class. To-day the world is full of idealism, but even the dreams of idealists disagree. On the plane of practical politics uncertainty, anxiety, suspicion are apt to crush the spirit of adventurous hope and mutual spmpathy. Once, the phrase "Vox populi, vox Dei" was the watchword of Democracy, but what meaning has it now, in the days which men call the Days of Democracy? Friction and misunderstanding between men of good will has been the saddest feature of the last year. The world is in desperate need of a common mind, bent on a common good—a real "volonte generale," on which the policy of nations can be securely based.

It is to help in creating this common mind, bent on a common good, that the Federation really exists. The Federation is bringing together students of every country, and is thus helping them to understand the point of view, the peculiar tendencies and aspirations, of nations other than their own. Suc hunderstanding is achieved largely by the promotion of ordinary social intercourse and friendliness between, for example, the students of America and the students of other countries who are studying in American universities. Next summer a special effort will be made to draw the students of different countries nearer together, since the General Committee of the Federation will meet, for the first time since the War, in Sweden where the Federation was founded twenty-five years ago.

Notwithstanding the strain of the War which broke so many other international bonds, and notwithstanding the powerful rival nationalistic ambitions, prejudice, and bitterness which have come as an aftermath of the War, the Federation through the power of Christ has maintained its solidarity and there has been a desire to re-establish friendly relations.

The officers of the Federation are asking students throughout the world to unite on Feb. 29th as a day of special thanksgiving and prayer. The churches of Canada are issuing a similar call for that day, in connection with the Forward Movement.

MACDONALD CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor, "Macdonald News":

Dear Sir,—May I be permitted space for a few words on the subject of whether or not a certain amount of skating might be allowed on Sunday, on the rink of a boarding- college such as ours.

Here, situated as we are, the number of ways in which we can occupy our time on Sundays is, naturally, limited. When we are at home, Sunday is often largely spent in visiting our friends and relatives, etc.; but here, where we have vehy few acquaintances outside of the College, this opportunity does not present itself.

Let me answer the arguments which I suppose are the main ones put forth by those who oppose this healthy and wholesome exercise being taken on Sunday:

First—"That it is not right, morally." To this, I would ask, "Which might possibly be the more harmful to the morals: To be outdoors, skating, in the fresh, invigorating air, or to be indoors, reading, probably, one of the modern novels, the majority of which are useless and so much trash?" Again, why discriminate between going out for a walk, and going out to skate? Where is the vast difference that makes one all wrong and the other all right?

Second—"That Sunday was set aside as a day of rest." To this, my answer is that a rest is practically synonymous with a change of occupation (i.e., from physical to mental, or vice versa). Thus, for the person who has been working hard physically all week, to sit down on Sunday quietly to read, is to rest. However, for those (including students) whose regular work throughout the week is almost entirely mental—for us, physical exercise, I contend, constitutes a rest, as rest for the mind is what we need, and which we do not get if we stay indoors, reading, etc., all day.

Exercise is necessary to maintain health of body, and a healthy body is necessary to health of mind and spirit, so do not take from us any opportunity for exercise, especially of such a splendid, wholesome type as skating.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
STUDENT.

McDONALD BIOLOGICAL CLUB MEETS

Lecture By Mr. Dickson On Chapters of Darwin's Origin of Species.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Various Other Short Papers Presented.

The Biological Club met the other evening for their weekly meeting in the Biology Building, with a good number in attendance.

The programme was begun with a paper by Mr. Dickson on the 3rd and 4th chapters of Darwin's Origin of Species. His subject was indeed a lengthy one, but he ably covered it, and presented a very comprehensive summary, which included various phases on: Complexity of relations of species of plant and anibal life, environmental conditions, sexual selection, circumstances favorable to production of new forms in natural selections, and the degree of advancement of organization in plant and animal life. The fundamentals of this part of the book were presented in: (1) All species have been produced by the development of varieties from common stock, by the conversion of these, first, into permanent races, and then by new species by the process of natural selection. (2) The struggle for existence exerts this selective action.

The 5th chapter of Darwin's book was presented by Mr. Hetherington. His subject dealt in modification of plant and animal structures and the disappearance of parts of structures by disuse.

Short papers on various subjects were also presented during the evening by Messrs. Saunders, Hockey and Peterson.

NOTICE.

Regular baseball practice will be held in the gym this afternoon at 4.30. This practice is very important, as the College team have a few difficult games to play the coming week. So, everybody out, and show that we are not only in the running for second place in the League, but have a toe hold on first place.

BOXING CLASS ATTRACTS CROWD

Another Hour a Week Needed To Keep in Best Condition.

This week's gymnasium was well attended Tuesday night, and proved to be the feature of the week as concerns student activities. Between twenty-five and thirty turned out for the class, which is a large number when it is remembered that there was skating as well. Sergeant-Major Shaye put the class through some marching and physical drill. This included arm movements, singly and combined, whilst marching, ending in some real strenuous Swedish drill, the kind that stretches every muscle and causes the recruit to groan.

The class then put on the gloves and went through another type of drill, punching, side-stepping, advancing and retreating by word of command. This was followed by some individual footwork and then by shadow boxing, intermixed with a few punches by command, to keep the mind working as well as the hands and feet. Mr. Shaye then paired the class off, matching them as evenly as possible, to finish off with three fast rounds of fisticuffs. Some very good boxing resulted, but the class as a whole showed decided lack of training. Some were practically winded at the end of the second round. It is almost out of the question to keep fit with only one hour a week of training, and unless those who are interested get in some work between times, they find the training insufficient to keep them up to top form.

The original intention of this class was to commence with one hour a week until it proved itself a success. No further proof is now needed, as it has proved to draw the crowd more than any other activity, so that another night could profitably be spent every week. Now that the skating season will soon be finished, it is going to be more popular still.

Again, it is planned to put on a real tournament at the end of the season, with good prizes for the winners of the different weights, and, if we are to get the best out of this, there should be some stiff training and a great deal more knowledge of the game is necessary for all of those who are likely to participate. Major Shaye has stated his willingness to take the class Thursdays. Those who are interested in this should do their best to make it a go. A good tournament at the end of the season should be one of the big events of the year. The Athletic Committee has the funds to see this through.

LECTURE SERIES TO BE CONCLUDED

Dr. F. L. Ritchie To Give Last Lecture Sunday.

An illuminating series of addresses given by Dr. D. L. Ritchie, Principal of the Congregational College, at Central Y.M.C.A., is to be concluded next Sunday. For several Sundays Dr. Ritchie has been dealing with a subject that should be of tremendous interest to men who are concerning themselves at all with the big questions of science and religion. Since religion of some kind is as natural to man as breathing; and since the Christian religion is the one which claims the thought of the most advanced countries to-day, there is an imperative need that men, in the student class particularly, seek to discover its relationship to life as they see it, and they certainly do not see it as they did five years ago.

Dr. Ritchie is a man whose scholarship and experience qualify him for a hearing. There is an all-too-evident misunderstanding to-day of what Christian thinkers and teachers are really doing. Criticism is good, provided that it be just and intelligent. Too often it can claim neither virtue.

The subject for Sunday afternoon is "The Christian View of Life." The meeting it at 4.00 p.m. McGill men are specially welcome, as these addresses are adapted particularly to students.

If it wasn't for the crank on a Victrola, some Hombres would never get any exercise.

ENTHUSIASTIC HOCKEY.

The interest which was shown yesterday in class hockey reveals the fact that there exists a live interest in the games played between the various classes. The first match was played between Sci. '22 and Sci. '21. The stars in the match were Gordon and Parker and the Sophs won by 3—2.

The next game was between First and Third Year Medicine. The same interest was displayed in this game and cheering on both sides revealed an enthusiastic spirit. The score was 4—2 in favor of the Third year.

QUIPS

Says the Old Scout, "A good many of these spirits who are knocking on tables nowadays never did anything better in this world than to rap on other table sfor beer."

MARRYING AND GIVING IN MARRIAGE.

Those simple souls who are interested in the workings of the l. a. of c. and who were thrilled by the Baldwin-Wedd nuptials as chronicled in the Trinity College Magazine will doubtless get another stimulus from the Spouse-Young wedding which took place at Vancouver some time ago. This further reminds us that in New York a few days since Rachel Baron Butler became the wife of Boyd Agin. Evidently the lady believes that "If at first you don't succeed ——"

SOMEONE AUTOSTROP YOU FOR THIS.

Sir:—

One learns from a recent dispatch that Gillette won a billiard match from Ellis in Buffalo by his safety play. Would you hazard that Gillette came out ahead because of his ever-ready safeties? Or would it be your opinion that Gillette was a "keen blade?"

Your,

NOSMO KING.

The world's greatest nuisance, according to Old Subscriber, is the bird who comes up behind you when you are reading a paper in the Union and tries to make the perusal a teamwork affair.

SPIRITUELLE.

The spirits are too much with us nawadays,
The rectified and resurrectified.
The laureates to Ethyl hymn their lays
Who never knew her name till she had died.

Some simpler souls in search of stimuli,
The baby Methyl's charms did not disdain;
They wooed the wood and laid them down to die
In handy ditch or hospitable drain.

In days of mud and rum when freemen strove
The war-lod's dire activities to fetter
H. Q., on sampling it, would cry, "By Jove,
The spirits of the troops were never better."

Soon so notorious the lot became
That only Prohibition would content 'em
But grief has come since they've essayed the game
On something like one half of one per centum.

The other spirits, too, their name is legion,
Around us in the air and papers dance,
The salvaged ones from upper airy region
And those from down below who took a chance.

They weary us to death with tales of Raymond
A Ouija-board and Lodge-ing history,
A plane tale from the other worlds, from les mondes
Beyond the Styx's darkling estuary.

Ad nauseam we're showered with productions
Of Patience Worth whose aura earthward roams
And now Sir Conan raises psychic ructions
We hope the blight will not reach Sherlock Holmes.

There are high spirits, too, and free and bubbling
And bubbling ones quite high and far from free,
But when I go where wicked cease from troubling
Many none of them be there to trouble me.

A EUGENIC MASTERPIECE.

(Calgary Herald.)

"His mother, who was left a widow when her gallant son was 11 years of age and who is her only son, was almost overcome upon her son's return. 'It is a very real home-coming to me,' she remarked to a representative of The Calgary Herald, and when the home at 181 Fourth Street West was reached it was a blaze of decorations. Many anxious moments, indeed, have been spent by the mother during the past four years. She was willing to part with all that she had in the cause of right and freedom."

In view of the considerable discussion now going on with regard to the place in the literary world of that person who is perhaps the world's best seller the following comments may be of interest to our readers. We would that we possessed as illuminating a series on the author of Pollyanna.'

"Why all this controversy as to whether or not Daisy Ashford wrote 'The Young Visiters'? For my part, I think it quite likely that she began writing novels several years ago—say at the age of 3—and published them under the name of Harold Bell Wright."—Edward Hope, in New York Sun.

"When anybody speaks as if speed always implied imperfection and leisurely writing literature, we are reminded that in the years in which Wells was turning out 'Mr. Britling Sees It Through,' 'The Undying Fire,' 'Joan and Peter,' 'The Soul of a Bishop,' 'God the Invisible King,' and several others, Harold Bell Wright produced just one book called 'The Re-Creation of Brian Kent.'"—Heywood Broun, in the New York Tribune.

"The other day we purchased 'The Re-Creation of Brian Kent,' by Harold Bell Wright; on the cover was written 'Net $1.50'—and believe us, they did."—Daily Princetonian.

OUR SERVICE STATION.

Sir:—

Will you write a poem for my wife? I had only been married a short time when I found that she was also the wife of six other men. They took her away and I believe she is out at some place they call Bordeaux. The papers say she will never come back. She said she simply couldn't refuse any man who asked her to marry him. The judge said she wasn't entitled to seven husbands. He said there were too many women who didn't have even one. Somebody told me you have a man who writes poems to order so I was wondering if you could have him write one for me to remember her by. I am not a McGill student but I have a brother who went to the Moler Barber College so I thought perhaps you would do this for me. With hopes that you will be able to do this.

Yours,

VERRE D'EAU,

Venerable Gardens, City.

On receipt of this appeal we immediately set Adenoid Annie, the office bard, to work with the result that she evolved the following deathless epic. As you will note the adenoid one favors the simpler and more virile forms of verse.

A lady whose last name was D'Eau
Was unable at all to say neau
When sought as a wife,
So the rest of her life
She wil spend as a ghest at Bordeaux.

It was in a historic spot in Scotland. Rhoderick Dhu had the brawn but Fitz-James was a regular staff-officer for strategy. Though Rhoderick fancied the broadsword Fitz-James had a strange weapon, lighter and trimmer, with a keen edge and yet with an excellent point. When the Highland chief asked him the reason for the tool the far-seeing James previsioned the present day two-role Shorthorn and replied, "This is my duel-purpose blade."

And so saying the old man went down to clip some more coupons.

Tell her about
It, but she—stuck up—
Sailed right
By.
The other guys were not
Gentlemen, and they
Looked straight at it
And laughed—
And she blushed
And hoped that a
Hole in the side would open
And swallow her up.

Too bad
I wanted to tell
Her that—
But she was so
Stuck up.

J. B.

VICTORY.

The hour was very late
'Twas about half past ten
And filler was in great demand,
For news was scanty then.

I quickly seized upon
Exchanges lately in.
And that is just the very point
Where troubles did begin.

The papers did not hold
Much news of use to us.
Meanwhile the editor in charge
Was kicking up a fuss.

When I had read about
A hundred more or less
I'm managed to cut filler out
For half a page I guess.

And now I had to start
To paste them on the sheet.
Alas, I could not find the brush
Supposed this need to meet.

I hunted high and low
Across, around and through,
But still that pesky little brush
Did not come into view.

Despair was in my eyes
I thought defeat was near
When lo I saw another brush
With which the paste to smear.

'Tis true it was not mine,
'Tis true 'twas not for paste,
But recking not the cost, to use
That brush I did make haste.

I soon found that the brush
Had e'er been used for inks
To mark upon the bulletins
The news from hockey rinks.

And now the paste is black,
And now the paste is foul,
I trust I shall not be there when
The owner starts to howl.

But I was full of pride
My task at last was o'er,
The "Daily" came out just the same
As it had done before.

A proverb just to close
And I shall choose this one;
"Be sure to always FINISH up
A task that you've begun."

Editor,

You can see them under the bureau,
Some, stick out from the bed;
They are long and white and greasy
For they're the bones of the dead.

Now I know you ask what's my meaning;
Do you think it is safe to tell?
My room-mate's a first year medical,
And I would that his bones were in hell.

DULCIA DOLORES—HER COLUMN.

Ed Note.—Dulcia will answer any questions of importance in any student's life. Freshies and Freshettes are strongly advised to use these columns. Address

C/o Dulcia Dolores,
McGill Daily
The McGill Union.

Ans.—Jessie: No Jessie, you should never let a married man kiss you; besides, think of your husband.

Ques.—Is it annoying to the audience if I chew gum in a show?

Ans.—Margaret: Not in a movie, but at a musical concert it is apt to drown the sound of the violins.

Ques.—Is it proper when you sit on a young man's knee to let him kiss you?

Ans.—Dear Freshette, you may sit on his knee, but you shouldn't let him kiss you under those conditions; and O, girlie, do be careful.

Ques.—Is a young gentleman from the country apt to be vamped in a large city like Montreal?

Ans.—Dear Si, better go back to the farm, the cows won't hurt you, but the chickens might.

Any questions concerning your past, present or future will be answered with truthfulness and strict privacy by Dulcia in person through these columns.

DULCIA.

OH MORES, OH TEMPORAE!

An old whisky bottle
Floated out to sea,
This corked whisky bottle
Was washed up to me,
And on a faded label
These words were written on
"The man that finds this bottle
Will find the whisky gone."

Never mind they can't fire me
My dad's in the asbestos business.

Fourth Year Mechanical (as he watches the fair co-eds and their escorts change classes)—"Oh! Why didn't I take Arts!"

EVERYBODY OUT FOR LEAP YEAR SKATE.

This should be one of the best Leap Year Skates, as the ice is in the best of condition. The last Leap Year Skate was a decided success, and this should be still better, as the girls are getting the habit. So, everybody turn out and enjoy the fresh air, as well as the good ice.

Student (to somewhat isolated clerk during ruch hour)—Have you got "Far From the Madding Crowd"?

The clerk was nonplussed.
